Since 2019, we trained 13 adivasi members from the community to address the mental health issues of mothers, children, and families. To date, we have connected with over 1000 adivasi families and spent more than 10,000 hours collectively in building relationships of trust, creating emotionally safe spaces for the children, youth, and women, spreading awareness on mental health, sensitizing the masses, and facilitating linkages or referrals to the government's specialized care services.
